Diamond in the rough

STEVE LOCKWOOD AND COMPANY PLAY
GLENDALE'S GRITTY WINCHESTER ROOM

YOU NEVER KNOW WHAT YOU'RE GOING TO FIND ALONG THE RUGGED LA entertainment landscape. A good example of that is the Winchester Room, a true jewel in the rough that sits across the street from railroad tracks in an industrialized part of Glendale.

The friendly San Fernando Road dive bar that you could easily drive past without noticing on select Tuesday nights hosts top jazz and blues acts, with recent artists including Thelonious Dub and female-fronted blues rockers Lookin' for Trouble.

A special musical treat is in store Tuesday night, when jazz pianist Steve Lockwood and his trio stop in for a set.

Known for his jazz improvisation, Lockwood's been a fixture at top clubs around LA, building a name by writing scores for stage productions and films. He's also toured the world with numerous acts, as well as his own ensembles.

Lockwood will be joined Tuesday by Michael Merritt and James Wormworth, the bassist and drummer with the "Late Night with Conan O'Brien" band. His latest disc is "Equipose," available at stevelockwood.org.

— John Sollenberger

Music starts at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Winchester Room, 6522 San Fernando Road, Glendale. No cover. Call (818) 241-5475.
